And it doesn't matter if you have an account there or not. Good thing you have Adblock!How to Block Ads on FacebookFortunately, learning how to stop ads on Facebook is very easy. They can be. In the desktop or mobile browser you can get rid of them easily with an ad blocker. But Facebook is not only the largest and most popular social network, it is also a great platform for promotion. In total, this social network has more than 2.20 million monthly active users and these numbers are growing. Adblock's list of custom filters blocks the Facebook pixel that allows websites to send information about your visit to Facebook. Google's legal battles over ad blocking, and will see that the right to use an ad blocker was recognized by a court order. The Anti-Social List blocks the "like", "share" and "sign in Facebook" widgets that also send information about you to Facebook, regardless of whether you click on them or not. But we assure you that AdGuard is doing everything possible to fix this issue, so keep an eye out for updates and enjoy a fast and safe browsing with us.) Facebook benefits from its huge advertising platform. As we mentioned in our post about blocking YouTube ads with Adblock, YouTube surpassed Facebook among the millennials who asked for the platform's name with the most frustrating ads in a 2017 survey. One of the most important news stories of 2018 was the revelation that Facebook allowed the personal data of up to 87 million users to fall into the hands of an analytics company linked to the 2016 US elections, the Brexit referendum and Russia's efforts to spread fake news.
